Dedication

If asked about their favorite wishes, many students would probably say, "I wish I could live like Gruffy." Gruffy is a teddy bear, purchased by the Yearbook staff this year. By industriously snapping pictures with his new treasure, Gruffy has made it possible for us to have a pictorial record of our 1953-54 year at El Dorado Junior College. May this camera continue to preserve the activities of Juco students for many years.

Order of the Purple

Gruffy's Turf Turners

As the 1954 track season gets under way, the prospects for a successful year are very good. Although only six meets have been scheduled to date, an effort is being made to secure others.

Due to the water shortage, the triangular meet and the state meet previously scheduled to be held in El Dorado probably will be held elsewhere.

Gruffy's Weekly Growl

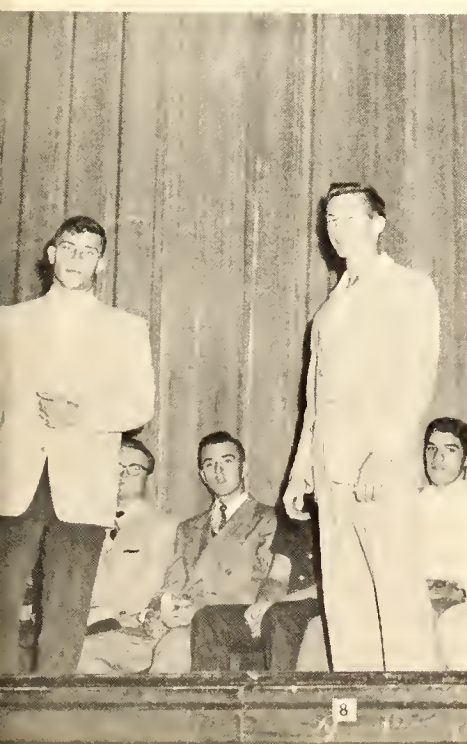

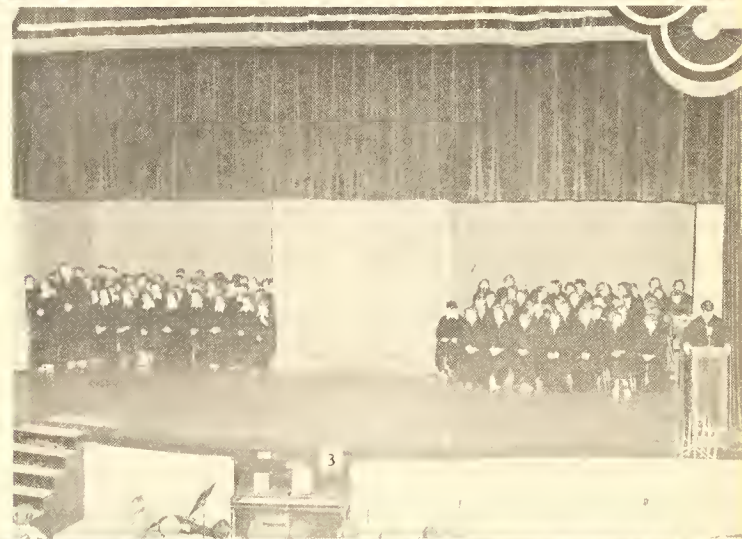

This year's journalism class was the first to be organized in El Dorado Junior College. Although there have been journalism clubs in previous years, there has never before been a regular class. It was the task of this class to publish a page in the Butler County News each week entitled "The Grizzly Growls."

Polly McGinnis was this year's editor, and Kathy Banks was assistant editor. Business manager was John Hess; exchange editor, Dick Burch; and sports editor, Allen Hawk. Jacque Sue Butler was the typist, and feature writers were Margery Cornwell, Leta Davenport, and Dona Murphy. Miss Fisher was the teacher and sponsor of this class.
